As a symbol of resilience and unity, Victory Day holds great importance, reminding us of the sacrifices made for freedom and the enduring spirit of the nation. On December 16, 1971, Bangladesh emerged as an independent and sovereign nation after a tumultuous struggle for freedom. The events leading to this historic day unfolded during the Bangladesh Liberation War, a conflict between East and West Pakistan. The people of East Pakistan, facing political and economic discrimination, sought autonomy, leading to a movement that eventually escalated into a full-scale war. The struggle for independence was marked by significant sacrifices and the unwavering determination of the Bangladeshi people.

UNIP BANGLADESH CHAPTER PRESIDENT VISITS AS MAIN GUEST FOR CHITTAGONG DIVISION CHEEBAR DAAN OCCASION.

United Nature International Peace (UNIP) Bangladesh Branch President, UN Volunteer ID (UNV.5691640) and the Ambassador of Brazil's Conipa Foundation. Dr. Raju Saha visits Chittagong Division on a Special Occasion Cheebar Daan, 16 October 2024 where Chittagong Chief Coordinator Ven Bijoyananda Bhikkhu was the prominent figure receiving us with respect and kindness.

Cheebar Daan , a religious rite and festival of Buddhism , is usually celebrated at any convenient time within a month of Pravarana Purnima (Autumn Purnima or the full moon of the Ashwin month) according to the Bengali lunar calendar. In this event, Buddhist monks are given special clothes called tri-cheebra . Devotees in the hope of merit like this every year donate cheebra and other accessories to the monks. A tri-cheebar is a four-part garment, consisting of a doajik , an undergarment, a chibeer and a girdle. Buddhist monks are allowed to wear this dress. These robes are given to Buddhist monks at a certain time each year, usually beginning on the Asadhi Purnima. In preparation for making this garment, cotton seeds are first spun, then cotton is collected, yarn is spun from it, the yarn is dyed with dyes made from tree bark or fruits, and finally various rituals and religious practices- This tri-chibar is made in just 24 hours, within a day, according to the law. Bain or bamboo frames are used to weave these clothes . Four people weave cloth together in such a bain. Thus, after 24 hours, those holy cheebars are handed over to the Buddhist monks through strict religious ceremonies. It is mentioned in the Buddhist scriptures that physical, verbal and mental efforts are more fruitful if given this way. Donating the hard-earned chibars to Buddhist monks in this way is nothing more than an unrequited act of charity and Buddhists believe that such an event will help spread the message of peace in society.

The event was graced by the honorable presence of the president of the Sangharaj Bhikkhu Mahamandal, Venerable Jinlankar Mahathero, who served as the president of the ceremony. The chief religious speaker of the event was Venerable Shasanabangsha Mahathero, vice president of the Sangharaj Bhikkhu Mahamandal. Dr. Raju Saha, the ambassador of world peace, president of United Nature International Peace Bangladesh, and international chief coordinator, attended as a distinguished guest. The chief kin representative was Venerable Ratanapriya Mahathero, president of the Bhujpur Regional Bhikkhu Association of North Fatikchhari. Special speaker Venerable Priyabodhi Thero, principal of Janarkhil Jnanaratna Monastery, also honored the occasion. Another distinguished guest was Engineer Samiran Barua, general secretary of United Nature International Peace, Chittagong branch. The event's honored inaugurator was Venerable Vijayananda Thero, chief coordinator of United Nature International Peace, Chittagong branch, and principal of Harina Amritdham Buddhist Monastery. Additionally, the event was attended by prominent banker Kanchan Barua, engineer Shaibal Barua, and educator Ratul Barua.
